

Polanyi's Paradox

When you try to write down all the rules for a job, you realize most of the important knowledge can't be written down.

If you measure people on...
...how completely they document their processes.

Then you might get...
...a robot that follows the rules perfectly but has zero common sense.

