

The Illusion of Explanatory Depth

When you ask someone if they understand a complex system, they will say yes, but they probably can't explain it.

If you measure people on...
...their self-reported confidence in understanding.

Do you understand the new system?

Absolutely!

Then you might get...
...false confidence that crumbles under the slightest scrutiny.

Great, explain it to me.

