

Moravec's Paradox

When you automate work, you find that what's easy for people is hard for computers, and vice-versa.

If you measure people on...

...solving complex, intellectual problems.

Then you might get...

...a genius robot that can't handle a simple physical task.

